Madam Prime Minister,

Let's put aside the comfortable rhetoric of Nord Stream investigations and Scandinavian exceptionalism. The illusion of a peaceful, untouchable North is dead. I am writing to you as a Danish man, a professional, and a citizen who looks at the North Sea, the Baltic, and our map with absolute realism.

Denmark is facing a quiet, cynical, and persistent threat from Russia. It is not an abstract shadow; it is happening right now in our waters. Russian spy ships are mapping our wind farms, their dark fleets are bypassing sanctions in our straits, and our undersea internet cables and gas pipelines are vulnerable targets. We are an maritime nation, and right now, our maritime security is being compromised.

As the leader of this country, your primary duty is not just to manage the welfare state or coordinate with EU partners. Your duty is to ensure the hard, physical survival of this nation. As a taxpayer and a citizen, I have several pragmatic questions for you and your government:

The Defense of the Seas: Our critical infrastructure is scattered across the seabed. Do we have the actual military capacity, the drones, and the naval presence to protect our energy and communication lifelines 24/7? Or are we still relying on our allies to do the heavy lifting while we watch the radars?

Civil Preparedness: You have recently advised Danes to stock up on water and food for emergencies. That is a start, but it is not enough. Where is the comprehensive national strategy to secure our power grids, food supply chains, and hospital systems against massive cyber warfare? A resilient society cannot be built on advice alone; it requires state-engineered infrastructure.

The Strategic Straits: The Danish straits are the gateway to the Baltic. Why are we still allowing shadowy, uninsured Russian oil tankers to navigate our waters, posing catastrophic environmental and security risks? It is time for unambiguous, firm enforcement of our maritime sovereignty.

Madam Prime Minister, I do not need comforting statements or bureaucratic updates. I am a pragmatic man; I know that peace is an expensive asset that must be actively defended. We are ready to make sacrifices, we support the increase in the defense budget, and we understand the gravity of the situation.

And yet, I am writing this to you because I recognize your leadership. Over the years, you have shown that you are not afraid to make tough, pragmatic decisions and take unpopular stances when national interest demands it. You have earned a reputation as a decisive leader who doesn't shy away from uncomfortable truths. You have the political capital to turn Denmark into a resilient, impenetrable maritime stronghold.

I want to believe in your resolve, and I do believe you have the strength to push through the diplomatic hesitation. Do not let political consensus dilute the urgency of this moment. Prove to us that our trust is justified. Give us a Denmark that is not just prosperous, but thoroughly prepared for the storms ahead.

I expect decisive actions, and I am ready to stand behind them.

With respect and resolve,

Peter Gemini

P.S. A Personal Audit of the Leader It is one thing to speak eloquently from a podium, and quite another to meet the hard demands of citizens. To understand how effectively Mette Frederiksen is handling her duties at this critical turning point in history, I have risked rating her on a strict five-point scale (from 1 to 5) based on four key criteria:

Political Experience and Wisdom: 4

Connection with the People (Empathy): 4

Decisiveness and Toughness: 5

Actual Preparedness of the Country: 4

Final Verdict: 4.25 / The Rock of the North. A leader with a genuinely iron character. She is entirely unafraid to speak uncomfortable, sobering truths to her citizens and actively forces society to prepare for worst-case scenarios. She acts ahead of the curve, aggressively closing maritime, energy, and digital security vulnerabilities.
