To His Majesty King Mohammed VI

Royal Palace, Rabat, Kingdom of Morocco

Your Majesty,

I am writing to you as a devoted subject, witnessing the transformation of our beloved Kingdom in June 2026. Morocco stands today as a lighthouse of stability in a volatile region, yet as we look past the grand architecture of our royal cities, there is an urgent narrative unfolding in the daily lives of your people that requires your attention.

In our modern institutes and universities, thousands of ambitious young Moroccans are graduating, yet they find the job market failing to keep pace with their potential. Our schools are undergoing modernization, but the gap between the rural interior and the bustling coastal cities remains a divide that needs closing. When we walk through the markets of Casablanca or Marrakech, we see a country that is commercially alive, yet the rising cost of living, exacerbated by global inflationary pressures, is straining the households of the working class. Our streets are a vibrant display of contrast—the latest European-model SUVs driven by the urban elite share the road with the classic, rugged vehicles that have powered our transport for decades.

As for our leisure, we are a nation of storytellers. We cherish our traditional tea culture and our bustling cafes, which serve as our theaters of social discourse. While we are proud of the growing cinematic industry—the "Hollywood of Africa" in Ouarzazate—and our beautiful heritage sites, the average citizen yearns for more accessible public spaces for sports, arts, and cultural expression that are not tied to commercial tourism. We see the impressive infrastructure projects, the high-speed trains, and the solar farms, but we hunger for these successes to translate more directly into localized economic empowerment.

We place our hope in Your Majesty to continue the path of modernization while ensuring that no Moroccan is left behind in the shadow of these grand achievements. We need a deeper commitment to social equity, where the fruits of our national progress reach the most remote villages of the Atlas Mountains as clearly as they reach the boulevards of Rabat.

With the loyalty of a patriot,

A Concerned Citizen of Morocco

Sovereign Performance Audit: Morocco (June 2026)

Sector

Score

Summary

Political Stability

4.5

High; strong monarchical leadership and institutional continuity.

Economic Development

3.5

Strong growth and diversification, but income inequality persists.

Social Infrastructure

3.0

Significant investment, though rural/urban divide remains a challenge.

Governance/Transparency

3.0

Modernizing, but public calls for greater accountability are growing.

Final Verdict: 3.5 / Modernization at a Steady Pace.

Morocco continues to be a regional leader in infrastructure and stability. The challenge for 2026 is moving beyond macro-level successes to ensure that every citizen feels the benefits of the country's modernization, particularly regarding youth unemployment and equitable regional development.
